A program for people
in and from the
Criminal/Legal System

ABOUT US

Project Rebound is a program for people who are ready and willing to become a part of a highly driven and positive learning environment. Our program is the catalyst that encourages formally incarcerated folks to become scholars through hands-on support tailored uniquely to Project Rebound students to empower them during their academic journeys. Full-time and part time student staff alike take pride in acting as living examples of successful collegiate reintegration.

Professor John Irwin initiated project rebound on the San Francisco State University campus in 1967. The program is staffed by students and full time staff, most of whom have had prior incarceration experiences. The program is an alternative to the revolving door policy of the criminal justice system. By offering a college support network that encourages students to excel in a course of study, Project Rebound discourages counterproductive behavior. The program seeks to admit full time students to San Francisco State University who are motivated to succeed in a field of study that leads to a Baccalaureate Degree.
